Aon Consulting's Radford Surveys + Consulting, has announced the appointment of Linda Amuso as president.

Amuso has advised senior management and boards for the last 20 years on the development and implementation of pay strategies, with particular regard for the constantly changing business environment.

Fifteen years ago she founded iQuantic and played a critical role in making it a national compensation consulting business.

Aon Global Compensation Consulting's chief executive officer, Brian Dunn, welcomed the appointment, describing Amuso as a true leader and trailblazer.

Dunn went on to say that Amuso had been crucial in the building up of Radford's consulting business since joining the firm three years ago as senior vice president.
